Report Format

Cover Page: A cover page should include the title, author name(s), affiliation, address, and contact email.

Title: The title should be succinct and relevant to the case.

Abstract: An abstract of no more than 250 words should summarize the case.

Introduction: A short introduction should state the purpose of the case report. Avoid lengthy literature reviews. Reference should be made to the purpose of reporting the case, e.g., the uniqueness of the case, an unusual or unreported approach to a problem, an unusual diagnosis, prognosis or therapy, or why the case is clinically relevant to the science of dental traumatology. The Introduction should include a brief review of the topic and acknowledge classic and current literature, and finish with a one-sentence summary or conclusion.

Case Description: The description should follow the guidelines for case report guidelines published in the journal Dental Traumatology. The case should be reported in sequence with history and examinations adequately described, including high quality photographs and radiographs obtained pre-treatment, during treatment and post-treatment. Treatment should be described with outcomes related to treatment and pre-treatment conditions. Include patient progress and outcome including appropriate follow-up. The follow-up time should be sufficient for the reader to be confident with the success of any intervention.

Discussion: The Discussion should involve a subjective critique by the author(s), rationally discussing decisions that were made and conclusions that were supported by data. The Discussion should report a literature review of similar case types and how this case is different from those previously reported, what is unusual about the case, and whether a similar case could be managed differently in the future. It should highlight specific aspects of the case(s), explain/interpret the main findings, and provide a scientific appraisal of any previously reported work in the field.

Conclusion and clinical implications: The manuscript should end with a concise statement that explains the clinical relevance and uniqueness of the case presented.

References: Should be up-to-date and written in the format for the journal Dental Traumatology.

Submission Guidelines:

The case should not have been previously published in any peer-reviewed journal. Co-authors may be included, however, the award will go to the first author. The first author should be primarily responsible for treating the case and all text in the case report.

Case reports should be kept brief. The written text should not exceed 4-5 double-spaced printed pages, including the abstract of no more than 250 words. Additionally, a maximum of 3 illustrations, 10 references, 10 radiographs, and 6 photographs may be included. Photographs should be of high quality and resolution, in accordance with Dental Traumatology publication guidelines.

Judging Criteria:

An independent judging panel, using a standardized assessment rubric, will evaluate the following:

- 1) Abstract
- 2) Description: History, examinations, treatment, outcome
- 3) Quality of radiographic and photographic images
- 4) Outcome
- 5) Comparative analysis
- 6) Potential impact of case report
- 7) Conclusion/Summary
- 8) Appropriate references properly formatted
- 9) Overall quality/worthiness of the case

Prizes will be awarded on the basis of this assessment. If the judges agree that no case report is of sufficient quality to be awarded a prize, IADT reserves the right not to award a prize for the calendar year.

Editorial Policies and Disclaimer:

The principal/corresponding author will be required to submit a Copyright Letter along with the manuscript, on behalf of all the co-authors (if any). The author(s) will confirm that the manuscript (or any part of it) has not been published previously or is not under consideration for publication elsewhere. Furthermore, any illustration, structure or table that has been published elsewhere must be reported, and copyright permission for reproduction must be obtained.
